

BEN NAPHTALY PASSES TO THE GREAT BEYOND

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—Benjamin Franklin Naphthal, the former Police Court practitioner, dropped dead last evening in front of the Russ House. His body was removed to the Morgue. Death was caused by a hemorrhage.

"Ben" Naphthal's career was a checked one. A man of talent, he turned his ability in directions which led to trouble and disgrace for himself and humiliation for every one who tried to hold him to the narrow path. He was born in California fifty-five years ago. An early escape gained him commitment to the Industrial School. While there his studious disposition attracted the attention of Captain J. F. Morrill, the superintendent, under whose care Naphthal gained a fair education.

When released from the school Charles de Young took him under his wing and placed him on the Chronicle as a reporter. He left De Young's employ later and took a position on the Bulletin, where he did some good work.

After leaving the Bulletin he published a paper of his own, the Sun, in an early edition of which he made a scurrilous attack on the De Young family. Charles de Young went gunning for him and the two fought a duel on Washington street in front of the Postoffice. Neither received any injury, but one of the bullets from De Young's pistol took effect in the leg of a messenger boy. De Young was arrested but afterward acquitted.

Meanwhile Naphthal had turned his attention to the study of law. He was admitted to the bar. His career as a lawyer is a story of petty chicanery. He took to drink and his downfall was rapid. The history of his life in Honolulu is a repetition of his San Francisco career.

He returned about three months ago, but made no apparent effort to brace up. He was married twice.

INN NOT TO BE CLOSED.

Mr. Almy Will Continue to Manage the Popular Resort.

An announcement was made in a local paper a few days ago to the effect that Wright's Villa, otherwise known as the Waikiki Inn, would be sold under a certain mortgage, which the article stated, is to be foreclosed.

H. N. Almy, manager of the Inn, stated yesterday that this announcement is entirely incorrect and that the place will continue under its present management, with the same accommodations in the way of bathing facilities, excellent table and other attractions for which the popular beach resort is famed. The rumor that the place will be closed on account of a mortgage foreclosure, or for other reasons, is entirely unfounded, and Mr. Almy wishes to announce to its patrons that the Inn is still ready to accommodate them in its usual acceptable manner, and will continue to do so, under Mr. Almy's own management.

WIDOW SEEKS TO BREAK ALDRICH ESTATE TRUST

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Minnie C. Aldrich of Honolulu is seeking to get control of her late husband's share of the property embraced in the William A. Aldrich trust, which trust the courts have declared should remain as the will of the deceased capitalist created it. William H. Aldrich, her late husband, died several times to have his share of the property segregated and set aside to him, but failed.

There has been much litigation over this estate, and just as everything was supposed to be properly settled the widow of William H. Aldrich comes to the front with her suit, which is against Mrs. A. A. Barton and Mrs. Helen A. Dunning, the trustees, and her own children.

Mrs. Minnie C. Aldrich brings her suit under the cover of a charge that the trustees did not account for the sale of some stock in the German Lead Works, amounting to only $334.32; but the object is to secure the control of her late husband's interest in the trust.

When the courts finally affirmed the legality of the trust, the children of the deceased capitalist were each given an equal interest in the property, but the integrity of the trust was maintained. Since then William H. Aldrich has died, and his share in the trust has been maintained for his children, his wife getting her portion of the income. In order to bring suit Mrs. Aldrich has been compelled to make her own children, for whom their father's portion of the trust is being maintained, defendants to her suit. It is directed against Mrs. Annie A. Barton and Mrs. Helen A. Dunning, the surviving trustees, and her five children, Helen H., Bernice B., Allen K., William A. and Swinton B. Aldrich.

Nothing Like Oil.

"In dealing with a man, remember that a spoonful of oil will go farther than a gallon of vinegar." The same may be said of children. There is nothing so good for children as the old-fashioned castor oil. However much they abhor it, it is their best medicine for disorders of the bowels. In the most severe cases of diarrhoea and dysentery, however Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy should be given after the oil operates, and a quick cure is sure to follow. For sale by all druggists and dealers. BENSON, SMITH & CO., Agents for Hawaii.

Some Books of Note.

The Potter and the Clay
A Romance of To-day. By Mand Howard Peterson.

It is hard to describe this interesting story. It is really a romance of contrasts; and the make-up of the leading figure, Trevelpan, is as subtle and human a study of an uncertain soul as any writer in these days has attempted.

J. Devlin, Boss
A Romance of American Politics. By Francis Churchill Williams.

Masterful, shrewd yet humorous and kindly, unscrupulous as a politician, honorable as a man, J. Devlin—the boss—is a typical American character, and the hero of a fine and strongly told story.

The Kidnapped Millionaires
A Story of Wall Street and the Tropics. By Frederick U. Adams.

A newspaper man kidnaps six Wall street multi-millionaires. The resultant stock panic, the adventures of the man, the magnates and their final rescue, unite in a realistic and fascinating narrative that will live in literature.

Tarry Thou Till I Come
By George Croly.

Gen. Lew Wallace (author of Ben Hur) says in the introduction which he has written (Sept., 1900) for this book: "In my judgment, the six greatest English novels are Franklin, The Last of the Barons, The Tale of Two Cities, Jane Eyre, Hypocrite, and this romance of Croly's."
